

April 1, 2021: The Foundation for Applied Molecular Evolution (FfAME) is looking for a full-time lab technician.

Location: 13709 Progress Blvd., Alachua, FL 32615

The job description includes, but is not limited to, the following:

1. Develop low-cost and high throughput diagnostics platforms under the direction of an immediate supervisor.
2. Develop diagnostics kits to test infectious and genetic diseases (e.g. COVID-19, Influenza, and cancer).
3. Perform PCR, RT-qPCR, and Next Generation Sequencing (NGS), analyze data, write reports, assist supervisor to evaluate the technologies developed at FfAME.
4. Assist in inventory management, ordering, and quality controls.

Required Education, Skills & Experience:

1. Bachelor's degree from an accredited college or university in biology, chemistry, molecular biology, or clinical laboratory science.
2. Experience in basic molecular biology techniques, real-time PCR, clinical laboratory experience, and next generation sequencing is a plus.
3. Demonstrate a strong work ethic and professional demeanor.
4. Possess a strong attention to detail. Ability to organize work to provide productive workflow.
5. Proficient in Microsoft Office (Word, Excel, PowerPoint).

Salary commensurate with experience

Please submit your resume to resumes@ffame.org.